NVIDIA Corporation

NVIDIA describes itself as a data-center-scale AI infrastructure company. It sells GPUs, networking and systems alongside the CUDA software platform and domain-specific libraries to enterprises, cloud providers and developers. 10-K

Company at a glance

Sector	Private sector
Industry	Semiconductors and related devices
Headquarters	Santa Clara, CA
Employees	About 42,000 (fiscal year ended Jan 25, 2026) 10-K
Listing	Nasdaq: NVDA

Industry context

- Market is intensely competitive; rapid technology change and possible new entrants or alliances. 10-K
- Large cloud companies also design their own AI hardware and software, competing with NVIDIA's platforms. 10-K

Financial snapshot (fiscal year ended Jan 25, 2026)

Metric	Latest period	Change
Revenue	$215.9B	+65.5% 10-K
Net income	$120.1B	+64.7%
Cash	$10.6B	At Jan 25, 2026
Total debt	$8.47B	At Jan 25, 2026

Leadership

- Jen-Hsun Huang, co-founder, President and CEO; Colette Kress, EVP and CFO. 10-K
- Nov 2026: independent probe into reported foreign targeting of Huang; investor suit filed. AP Mercury News
- Ajay Puri is retiring as EVP, Worldwide Field Operations; Nicholas Parker (ex-Microsoft) named successor. 8-K

Strategy and recent direction

- Platform strategy: chips, networking, systems and software co-designed for data-center-scale AI. 10-K
- Aug 2026: partnered with SB Energy on an Ohio AI campus with OpenAI as tenant; NVIDIA guaranty capped at $105B. 8-K

Partners, competitors, and IBM

Organization	Role	Publicly reported relationship
Supermicro, IBM	IBM-related	Nov 6, 2026: Supermicro announced KV cache solution with IBM Storage Scale and NVIDIA Dynamo Supermicro
SB Energy	Partner	Aug 17, 2026: multi-year partnership for PORTS campus in Pike County, Ohio 8-K
AMD, Intel, Huawei	Competitor	Named as GPU and AI accelerator competitors, 10-K for fiscal 2026 10-K
Microsoft, Amazon, Alphabet	Competitor	Named as cloud companies with in-house AI hardware, 10-K for fiscal 2026 10-K